DISGRACE DISMISSAL.

War Council Takes Summary Action Against Kuropatkin.

RECALLED TO RUSSIA

General Linevitch, Who Relieves Him
as Commander of Both Land
Sea Forces, Has a Great Task on Hand.

St. Petersburg, March 17.—With the Japanese hanging on the heels and flanks of the remnants of the broken, defeated Russian army, General Kuropatkin, the old idol of the private soldier, has been dismissed and disgraced, and General Linevitch, commander of the First army, appointed to succeed him in the command of all the Russian land and sea forces in operations against the Japanese. The word disgrace is written in large letters in the laconic imperial orders gazetted, which contains not a single word of praise, and also disposes of the rumor that Kuropatkin had asked to be relieved. Russian military annals contain no more bitter imperial rebuke. While it was known that the war council had already decided to supplant Kuropatkin after the Mukden disaster, the decision to confer the task of saving the remainder of the army on Linevitch,

GENERAL GRODEKOFF.

In the very midst of its flight, although bruited Thursday night, came as a surprise. It transpires that Emperor Nicholas, upon the advice of General Dragomiroff and War Minister Sakharoff, determined that this step was necessary when it became apparent Thursday morning that Kuropatkin, while concentrating for a stand at Tie Pass, seemed unaware that the Japanese had worked around to the westward again and practically allowed himself to be surprised. The reports brought by General Gripenberg regarding Kuropatkin's falling mentality also had influence. Under the circumstances, therefore, it was considered imperative, in view of the exceding perilous position of the army, to turn over its command to Linevitch, who alone has been able to bring off his army in order after the battle of Mukden. His record during the Chinese war had also demonstrated his capacity as a commander. Kuropatkin will return to St. Petersburg forthwith.

The task confided to Linevitch of withdrawing what is left of the great army of 350,000 men to Harbin is a desperate one. He is hemmed in on all sides. General Kamamura presumably is pressing northward through the mountains eastward ready to swoop. Generals Nogi and Oku are on the west of the Russian forces, the whole line of railroad is threatened, if not already cut, and Chinese bandits are even reported to be in the rear of Harbin. The consummation of the Mukden disaster is feared. Napoleon's plight in his retreat from Moscow with Kutsoff's Cossacks harrassing the starving, freezing Frenchmen was hardly as bad or dangerous.

Nothing further has arrived from the front, but it is feared the decimated battalions, which had hardly recovered from the demoralization of the Mukden retreat, have again been thrown into confusion by Field Marshal Oyama's relentless and merciless pursuit. The war office greatly fears more of the siege and field gunds which Kuropatkin managed to save at Mukden have been sacrificed in the hurried flight from Tie Pass. The question of ammunition and food is also vital, as it is known the Russians were compelled to burn further stores at Tie Pass, where the commissariat was only beginning to feed the half-famished troops when the new retreat was ordered. But even in the face of the possibility of the complete loss of the army and the admitted fact that Vladivostok is possibly lost the emperor still shows no signs of yielding.

The war council, it is so understood, says Vice Admiral Rojestvensky shall continue his voyage and give battle to the Japanese in the forlorn hope of taking the control of the sea from Admiral Togo.

MIGHTY MOVEMENT.

Japanese Covered Ninety Miles and Every Inch Was Fought.

Fusan, March 17.—The arrival of the Japanese armies at Tie Pass makes their movements the greatest in modern history. The armies covered ninety miles and fought practically every inch of the way. It is not probable the Russians will make another stand south of Harbin.

PEABODY IS SWORN IN

By a Bare Majority Legislature Declares F. M. Governor.

AS TO RESIGNATION.

Understanding Was He Should Turn the Office to Lieutenant Governor McDonald, but Did Not So State.

Denver, March 17.—James H. Peabody won his contest for the office of governor, from which he retired on Jan. 19, after serving a term of two years, but his victory was achieved only after he had given his pledge to resign and surrender the chair to Lieutenant Governor Jesse F. McDonald. The vote in joint convention of the general assembly by which Gov. Adams was ousted and Governor J. H. Peabody installed was 51 to 41. The Republicans voted with the Democratic members for Adams.

It was more in the nature of a party than a personal triumph, for both Peabody and McDonald are Republicans and Adams is a Democrat. Although JAMES H. PEABODY, GOVERNOR OF COLORADO.

The Republican majority on joint ballot is thirty-five, the membership of the legislature being sixty-six Republicans and thirty-one Democrats, it had been found impossible to gain for Peabody enough Republican votes to reinstate him as governor for the remainder of the term ending in January, 1907.

Twenty-two Republican members of the general assembly, according to report, refused to be bound by any action in caucus on the contest, and entered into a compact not to vote for Peabody. A majority of them, however, were in favor of seating the lieutenant governor in the governor's chair if means could be found to do so legally. Finally the leaders of the opposing Republican factions arranged a compromise by which Peabody would be vindicated by being declared elected, and McDonald would be made governor.

At the conference at which the bargain was made pledges were given to the independent Republicans by the heads of four large corporations, who have been active supporters of Peabody, that he would retire after being seated and permit the lieutenant governor to take the office of governor.

Governor Peabody's resignation, it is said, was placed in the hands of W. S. Boynton. Governor Adams, who had spent the day packing his effects, surrendered his office to Governor Peabody shortly after 5 o'clock Thursday afternoon. Scores of letters, telegrams and telephone messages had reached the executive chamber during the day urging Governor Adams to hold his seat by force, but he decided to ignore this advice. In conversation, he said he felt outraged at the action of the general assembly, and expressed surprise that Mr. Peabody should become a party to what he termed a conspiracy to secure the office of governor for a man who had no claim whatever to the place. Gov. Adams will issue a formal statement to the people regarding the result of the contest.

James F. McDonald was born at Ashtabula, O., in 1858. He came to Colorado in 1879, and has extensive mining interests in Leadville and elsewhere.

Peabody, after taking the oath of office, thanked the legislature for having "done their duty." He went, accompanied by General Sherman M. Bell and some friends, to the governor's chamber. Peabody introduced himself to Governor Adams' private secretary, Albert Patek, and offered to shake hands. Mr. Patek drew back and uttered a contemptuous remark, which caused Colonel F. N. Gross of the Colorado National Guard to seize Mr. Patek by the shoulder and demand that he repeat the remark he had made.

Before Mr. Patek could reply General Bell separated the two men. Standing upon the portico of Peabody's residence Thursday night while a band played and a chorus of voices shouted congratulations to the governor, D. B. Fairley, chairman of the Republican state committee, engaged in conversation with a representative of the Associated Press.

"Will Peabody resign?" he was asked.

"I think not," was the reply.

"Has he signed a resignation?"

"A tentative one; yes."

"What will be done with it?"

ADMISSION 10 CENTS

"Nothing," answered the chairman. "Was this a part of the plan to seat him?" the reporter asked. "I believe so," responded Mr. aFirley. The appearance at the door of Gov. Peabody interrupted the talk and later the former governor himself came out on the portico and addressed the crowd. He thanked his friends for their loyalty, but made no reference to his intentions regarding the governorship.

whatever' nor do I recommend their use.

It is important that the soldering iron or copper be kept properly tinned, for without this the solder will adhere to the copper instead of adhering to the caps of the cans. File your copper smooth, if necessary, heat it nearly but not quite red hot, place it on a piece of tin, any bright tin will do, put a little rosin or soldering fluid on the tin and put the hot copper on the tin, adding a little solder. Keep turning the copper so that all four sides of it will be evenly tinned.

Never let the copper get red hot while you are canning for if you do the tin will burn off and you will have to re-tin it.

I heat my coppers in the front of my stove though a small furnace made out of a joint of stove pipe is better, using charcoal or mineral coal. I shall be glad to try to answer any questions that any of your readers may wish to ask relative to the canning business.

CURES CATARRHAL DEAFNESS.

One Week's Use of Hyomei Did More Than Six Months' Treatment by Specialists.

In the treatment of deafness which is often a result of catarrh Hyomei acts almost immediately upon the inflamed membrane and the hearing begins to return at once. A few days treatment will bring relief, and in three or four weeks, according to the severity of the case, a cure will be accomplished.

Miss Meeks of Mattewan, N. Y. says: "Hyomei is truly wonderful. I have used it but a short time and see a great change in my condition. My hearing is improving rapidly, and I had no idea I would improve so rapidly in so short a time. My breath which was so offensive to myself and others, has lost its bad odor entirely. I have spent a great deal of money with catarrh specialists and can truly say that six months of their treatment is not equal to one month of Hyomei."

E. J. Jenkins is selling Hyomei upon the unusual plan of agreeing to return the money if the medicine does not cure.

A complete outfit costs only $1.00 and consists of an inhaler that can be carried in the vest pocket, a medicine dropper and a bottle of Hyomei. The inhaler will last a lifetime and there is enough Hyomei for several weeks' treatment. Additional bottles of Hyomei can be procured for 50 cents. Compare this small expense with the fees charged by specialists and then remember that if Hyomei does not cure E. J. Jenkins will return your money.

The following resolutions were adopted by the Chapter and read by Mrs. W. A. Banks.

RESOLUTIONS.
Adopted by L. S. Ross chapter U. D. C. on the death of Judge John H. Reagan.

Whereas, the Almighty Dispenser of Events has lately removed from our midst the revered statesman and patriot, John H. Reagan; and whereas, as a chapter of Daughters of the Confederacy, whose duty it is to perpetuate the memory of the times wherein he made his grandest record, deem it a privilege as well as a duty thus to honor the name and character of the last member of Davis' cabinet; therefore be it

Resolved, That we, as members of the body of Southern citizens who still cherish the memories of 1861-65, unite in the mourning which now pervades the Southern heart, at the departure from earth of this beloved and honored patriot father.

That we will ever be faithful to the obligations of our order, which bind us to commemorate the worthy names and deeds of our heroic dead, of whom he is the last representative.

That we offer our sincere sympathy to the bereaved widow, left alone in the evening of her days, commending her to the fatherly care and consolation of Him who has said "As thy day is, so shall thy strength be."

That these resolutions be recorded in our minutes, and published in one or more of our city papers, and that a copy be sent to Mrs. Reagan.

Signed: Mrs. J. D. West, Mrs. F. I. Garth, Mrs. W. A. Banks, Committee.

OFFICERS ARRIVE.

They Were on Five British Steamers Captured by the Japanese.

San Francisco, March 17.—Officers from five British freight steamers that were captured by the Japanese while trying to run the blockade into Vladivostok arrived on the steamer China from Yokohama. The number included twelve men from the British steamers Rosalie, Leithington, Oakley and Baudrey, last bound from Great Britain for the Siberian port, when they were captured, and the M. S. Dollar, which was bound from this city. The total amount of coal cargoes falling into the hands of the Japanese reached nearly 25,000 tons. The captains of all these vessels remained behind in Japan with the vessels awaiting the final decision in the matter of the captures.

Preparations for continuing the war on a larger scale than ever are proceeding. The dictum has gone forth that another army of 450,000 is to be dispatched to the far east, and in order to avoid delay it has been decided that instead of sending only reserve men to the front, new armies, made up largely of regular units, will go, the reserves to replace the regulars in garrison duty at home. Throughout the war many military men have contended that it was a fatal mistake to send reserve men to the far east. A division of the Imperial Guard will be sent to the front. It is not improbable that some of this year's conscripts will be sent. Separate armies are to be organized under Generals Grodekoff, Grippenberg and Kamaroff. Even in the most optimistic quarters, however, it is realized that a general mobilization is likely to be accompanied by widespread disorders unless the composition and functions of popular representation under an imperial rescript are more satisfactory than now appears probable. Practically no progress is being made by the Boulignan commission. The emperor has been so much occupied with the war situation that he twice postponed action on Governor General Boulignan's recommendations, and the latter is represented to be so dissatisfied that he desires to resign and turn over the work to his assistant, M. Vatsati.

Some unknown person or persons made an unsuccessful attempt to chloroform Mrs. John Ettle at her home on the west side of town, on Thursday night while Mr. Ettle was absent at his place of business. A towel saturated with chloroform had been placed by Mrs. Ettle's bed, and before the fumes overcame her she was fortunately awakened by her baby and screamed for help. Dr. W. C. Fountain, the nearest neighbor, went to her assistance, but neither he nor Mr. Ettle, who soon arrived, was able to find anybody on the premises. The towel and an empty chloroform bottle was found on the floor. It is believed the attempt was made in order to steal a diamond ring worn by Mrs. Ettle. The incident is such as to arouse the entire community, and no effort will be spared to detect the guilty party.

BRYAN PEOPLE'S EXPRESSIONS

Regarding the Glee Club's Concert Last Tuesday Night.

The Eagle has already given editorial expression of the excellence of the A. & M. Glee Club concert Tuesday night, and believes that in justice to the director and the club, that some of the very hearty compliments passed by members of the audience might well be quoted. The people of Bryan expected something good of the concert, but were taken a little by surprise to find that it was one of the very finest attractions that has been to Bryan, regardless of price.

Prof. J. H. Allen and Mrs. Allen (of Allen Academy) pronounced it an attraction that they have rarely known surpassed.

Prof. T. S. Minter, superintendent of the graded school, said as much as Prof. Allen did, and added that aside from its general merit, the program contained some of the most striking and effective minor features that he ever witnessed and heard, taking the house by storm.

Mrs. Edward Hall was delighted with the entertainment from beginning to end, and pleaded guilty of being one of the audience that helped to make the prolonged and insistent encores.

Mrs. Tyler Haswell said that she was so delighted with the entertainment throughout that her praise of it could only be expressed in seemingly extravagant terms. Mr. Haswell thinks that the excellent training speaks eloquently for the work of the director, Professor Junkin. "Valse Heroique," Mrs. Johnston's piano selection, she avers, was not only a happy selection for the occasion, but was rendered in a way that stamps the performer a mistress of the piano forte. Mrs. Haswell was not alone in praise of Mrs. Johnston's number, almost everyone who spoke of it referring to it with praise.

To repeat all the fine things said of Prof. Junkin as a director, of the wonderfully sweet voice of Mr. Lane, and the exquisite violin numbers by Mr. Mayer, might be considered invidious distinction, so well did all the club members do their parts, and so excellent are the voices of all. So nothing further will be said of individual members. In fact, if there is a poor voice in the glee club, or a participant whose work might not be called superb, the large audience of Bryan people failed to find it out.

We will close this comment by quoting Mr. G. M. Brandon, who said that if our opera house management will insure their one dollar shows to be anything nearly so good as the Glee Club concert, they will always have good houses.

The only people in Bryan who feel bad about the Glee Club concert are those who did not attend and have since been hearing the universal praise.

Coulter's special sale attracted large crowds again yesterday, drawing customers from fifteen miles in the country in spite of the threatening weather, which brought rain in the afternoon. The scramble for bargains was on all day. It is hard to tell which of the many values offered are in greatest demand, but the palm probably belongs to those drummer's sample ladies' tailored skirts.

J. W. Singleton of Waxahachie and P. S. Grogan of Hearne, president and secretary respective of the Bryan Cotton Oil Co., and Insurance Adjusters T. W. Monagan, L. H. Booso and W. T. BRIBERY CONSPIRACY.

Five Persons Are Named, and Three of Them Give Bond.

Austin, March 17.—Following the acquittal of District Attorney Warren W. Moore the grand jury of Travis county, which was on March 6 impaneled and charged by Judge Victor L. Brooks of the Twenty-sixth district court, late Thursday afternoon presented an indictment wherein five persons were charged with having conspired to bribe Warren W. Moore, judicial officer of the state of Texas.

Only three of the parties so charged were in Austin Thursday, namely, A. S. Vandervoort, W. B. Wortham and F. D. Glover. They were notified by telephone and immediately appeared before Judge Brooks each giving bond in the sum of $25,000 for his appearance.

The sureties of Messrs. Wortham and Glover were V. O. Veed and Joe Nalle. The sureties of Mr. Vandervoort were Dr. E. P. Whit, B. W. Randolph and R. H. Kirby.

The writs were made returnable to the April term of Judge Brooks' court, which begins on the first Monday in April.

KILLS DIVORCE BILL.

House by a Close Vote Fails to Pass the Smith Measure.

Austin, March 17.—The Smith divorce bill, which passed the senate, came up on second reading in the house Thursday.

Mr. Carswell of Wise offered an amendment reducing from three years to one year the period after a decree of divorce within which the party at fault might remarry, and from one year to six months the period within which the innocent party may remarry. Adopted.

Bill was finally killed—55 to 52. A motion to reconsider and table was adopted.

The house finally passed the bill by Senator Hicks requiring reports to be made by public utility corporations, amended so as to require copies of such reports to be furnished to county clerks for information of tax assessors and boards of equalization.

It finally passed senate bill granting permission to the Texas and New Orleans railroad to sell its Dallas-Sabine Pass line.

House committee on revenue and taxation reported adversely, by a vote of 8 to 6. Mr. Cranke's bill increasing the ad valorem tax, after adopting an amendment making the rate 20c for each of the next two ensuing years.

DALLAS SELECTED.

Next Meeting of the Woodmen Will Be Held at That City.

Waco, March 17.—Dallas was selected for next meeting place of jurisdiction "C." Woodmen of the World. President Jordan of the Southern Cotton association delivered an address.

Woodmen's Circle will also hold next meeting at Dallas. Following officers were elected: Mrs. Maggie Hyde of Dallas, grand guardian; Mrs. Daisy Kachell of Denison, grand adviser; Mrs. Mary Taylor of San Antonio, grand clerk; Mrs. Alice Allen of Somerville, grand banker; Mrs. Kate Doss of Colorado, grand magician; Mrs. Dona Howard of Terrell, grand attendant; Mrs. Dora A. Allard of Cleburne and Miss Emma S. Culbertson of Waco, supreme delegates.

SHOCKING CRIME.

Young Lady Said to Have Been Criminally Assaulted by Several Men.

Greenville, Tex., March 17.—A most dastardly deed is reported to have been done near the Fannin and Hunt county line, a young lady being the victim. It is said that two men stopped her in the public road, dragged her from the buggy in which she was driving, dragged her with liquor and kept her in a thicket all night. It is alleged that the two young men were joined by other parties during the night. It is stated on arrest was made, but the man denied any participation in the crime.

Assaulted by a Negro.

Conroe, Tex., March 17.—Sheriff Anderson was informed by telephone that a white lady was criminally assaulted by a negro at Timber. No particulars. He left at once with hounds for the place of the crime.

TEXAS LADY SUICIDES.

Mrs. L. W. Owens of Terrell Twice Shoots Herself.

Little Rock, March 17.—Mrs. L. W. Owens of Terrell, Tex., who is visiting her sister here, committed suicide by shooting herself twice with a pistol, once in the head and once in the breast. She left no written explanation of the act, and at the inquest no evidence was adduced to show why she killed herself other than that she had been despondent lately.

PATRICK'S PRESENCE.

His Appearance in Court Due to Large Civil Interest.

Albany, March 17.—The argument in the appeal of Albert T. Patrick from continuation of the murder of William Marsh Rice was concluded before the court of appeals Thursday. In explanation of Patrick's unprecedented action in appearing before the court a statement was made in his behalf which says the necessity of Patrick's attendance upon this appeal was owing to the fact that large civil interests are incidentally involved, and also charges of forgery. The application for Patrick's presence upon the argument, the statement avers, was granted by the court as a matter of judicial discretion, and was not in any way a favor to Patrick.

Terrific Hail Storm.

Davis, I. T., March 17.—This section was visited Thursday by a terrific hail storm, doing immense damage, killing birds, chickens and smashing window lights over the city. It is estimated that there was a two-inch rainfall. Hailstones almost the size of a hen's egg fell for forty minutes.

LAST STRONGHOLD LOST.

Southern Manchuria Is Virtually In Hands of Japanese.

St. Petersburg, March 17.—With the evacuation of Tie Pass, the Russian army abandoned the last stronghold in southern Manchuria and definitely turned over that section to the Japanese for the campaign of 1905. At least no other strategy is possible for General Kuroptakin, in view of his scanty supplies of ammunition and stores, the shattered condition of his army and the wide enveloping movements which the Japanese have continued almost without a stop since the Russian defeat of Mukden. Nothing has been heard of the part which General Kamamura's army is taking in this operation, but Generals Nogai and Oku, operating in the low hills of the Tie Pass gorge, were themselves sufficient to turn the shattered Russian army out of the fortifications which had been prepared with a view to being held by the army after it should have been withdrawn from Mukden.

The Japanese evidently are doing their utmost to accomplish envelopment of the Russian army, which all but succeeded at Mukden, but General Kuroptakin, with the railway for a line of retreat probably would be able to keep a head of his pursuers. A constant success of delaying rear guard encounters may be expected.

The situation of Tie Pass involves the loss of the coal mines in that vicinity, which, with the Fushun and Yantai mines gone, is a severe blow. The railway shops are at Tie Pass.

Further mobilization has been determined upon and preparatory orders to quartermasters, etc., are already being issued, but the extent of the mobilization is not known.

IN THE MOUNTAINS.

Kuroptakin Is Endeavoring to Shake Off the Pursuing Japs.

New York, March 17.—General Kuroptakin and the remnants of the army are now in the mountains, a few miles north of the southern entrance to Tie Pass, trying to shake off their pursuers, who are apparently not going to repeat the mistake of Liao Yang and allow the Russians to escape.

Kuroptakin has been reinforced by the garrison of Tieling and other northern towns and a few new troops, who were on their way from Russia when the battle of Mukden began. But even with these there seems little hope for him.

LOAN POSTPONEMENT.

Matter Continues to Occupy Attention in Financial Circles.

Paris, March 17.—The postponement of the proposed new Russian loan continues to occupy attention in official investment circles. The bankers take the view that the loan is not a failure, and that an adjustment of the conditions may still be reached. One of the bankers who went to St. Petersburg relates that during a conversation with M. Witte, the latter remarked: "We can afford to suffer a defeat in Manchuria, but not one in Paris." This is taken to indicate a strong feeling in St. Petersburg for all possible concern to maintain Russia's financial position in the French market.

Peace has gained a strong impetus by the postponement of the loan, and this leads to reports that France is adopting secret means to induce Russia to accept peace. However, statements are made that France is not taking any action, nor has Russia given any indication of willingness to discuss peace.

LINEVITCH CHOSEN.

He Will Succeed Kuroptakin as Manchurian Army Commander.

St. Petersburg, March 17.—It is officially announced that General Kuroptakin will be replaced by General Linevitch as commander-in-chief of the Manchurian army.

DESPERATE DAVIS.

While Endeavoring to Arrest Him, City Marshal Was Shot.

Arkansas City, Kan., March 17.—A man who gave the name of James Davis, wanted for alleged complicity in the robbery of the Bank of Renfrow, at Renfrow, Okla., March 10, was arrested here after a desperate struggle in which he shot City Marshal Seyfer. Seyfer's wound is not serious.

Davis was located in a building on Main street Wednesday night. An attempt to arrest him was made by half a dozen officers, but they were driven from the place by the wounded bank robber at the point of two revolvers. Seyfer was slow in retreating, and Davis shot him in the shoulder. Davis then barricaded himself while officers laid siege until daylight. Early Thursday they forced an entrance to the building and captured Davis.

NINE PERSONS BITTEN.

Two Mad Dogs Attack Six Children and Three Men at Durant.

Durant, I. T., March 17.—Two rabid dogs from the country entered the city and bit nine people—six children and three men. The citizens are wrought up to a high pitch and the women and children are afraid to venture from their homes. The police force and citizens are taking no chances, and are killing dogs at a rapid rate.

Tragedy at Madill.

Madill, I. T., March 17.—The old town of Oakland, which is the western part of Madill, while H. C. Harkey, an old and respected citizen, who has lived there for years, was building a fence, he was shot with a rifle, dying on the ground before he could be moved. A. B. Ward came to Madill and surrendered.

Bigamy Charged.

Lawton, March 17.—The grand jury, has returned an indictment against Lester McCall for bigamy. It is alleged that he married Miss Ellen Moore of Letitia on March 10 last, when he already had a living wife.

FINE STRUCTURE.

Lieling Railway Station So Declared by Japanese Officers.

Tokio, March 17.—A telegram received from army headquarters in the field says: "The railway station at Lieling is a splendid structure and its arrangements are equal to those of the station at Liao Yang. Enemy's provisions and fodder were piled around this station, set on fire and two-thirds of the material destroyed. We captured numerous spoils, but have no time to investigate them. A great number of prisoners have been taken in the direction of the right wing, but the details of their capture have not yet been received."

Crying For Peace.

St. Petersburg, March 17.—Completely disheartened, the ranks of those who are calling for peace are growing, the strongest convert being Prince Meshchery, who, as shown by an article in the Grashdanin Friday morning, has become suddenly a zealous advocate of reform, declaring that to make an end of the war would not require more heroism than to conclude peace after victory. He thanks God for sending defeat instead of victory, which, he says would only cover with laurels the gaping wounds and miseries of the poverty-stricken people and badly fed and badly clothed, but the heroic soldiers he justified as robbers of a peaceful country.

CALLED ASTONISHING.

Reiterate Findings That Strychnine Caused Mrs. Stanford's Death.

Honolulu, March 17.—Edmond Shorey, chemist of the United States agricultural station and Rrs. W. O. Murray and Humphries, in a signed statement replying to Professors Jordan and Timothy Hopkins, who recently announced the death of Mrs. Stanford to be due to natural causes, characterizing the statement of these gentlemen as astonishing and reiterate the findings that strychnine was the cause of death. They say the publication of the Jordan-Hopkins opinion makes it incumbent upon them to reply and they give several reasons why death must have resulted from strychnine poisoning. Continuing, the statement goes on to discuss the testimony of Miss Bernier, Mrs. Stanford's secretary; of May Hunt, her maid; and that of Drs. Humphreys and Murray. It quotes medical authorities regarding symptoms of poisoning by strychnine and reaffirms the positive opinion that strychnine poisoning caused her death.

With the Aid Of Whittier

By OTHO B. SENG

Copyright, 1904, by Otho B. Seng

"Aren't you glad you came, Malcolm?"

The girl's voice was sweet and joyous, and she looked with a bright smile into her companion's somewhat gloomy face.

"I suppose you've been very happy here, Winifred," avoiding a direct reply.

"Indeed I have," enthusiastically. "They've been the four happiest years of my life. Weren't the class day exercises beautiful?"

"Very pretty, Winifred," absently.

His gaze was fixed on the laughing throng—the easy, debonaire young men in evening clothes, the girls with their white dresses and fluttering ribbons, flitting about like gay colored butterflies beneath the swinging Japanese lanterns, congratulating, chatting, moving on again in seemingly endless procession.

"What is the matter, Malcolm? Did you think it was silly—the 'daisy chain'?"

"No, Winifred, I thought it all very interesting, and you girls in your white gowns looked very beautiful."

"But there is something, Malcolm," persisted the girl, "and you haven't said that you are glad that you came. It is a long journey to take just to attend the graduation of—of an old friend, and I'd like to feel that you are glad you came. You do not act as if you are happy."

"I am glad I came, Winifred, for I've learned many things, but I can't truthfully say that the knowledge makes me happy."

The cluster of roses at the girl's breast trembled like things endowed with sentient life, but the girl only said gently, "Well?"

"It is not well," he answered in a voice harsh with repressed emotion, "not for me. When you left Bloomington four years ago we were engaged—a tentative sort of an engagement, I admit, which your parents allowed because they knew that with your disposition opposition would only make you more determined and because they were wise enough to look ahead—to this. They knew then what I begin to see now," bitterly.

The girl made no answer. She hardly seemed to hear the harsh, bitter tones with the half hidden strain of anguish.

"For four years you have lived like this," a slight gesture indicating the fairy land before them. "Your daily association has been with persons of refinement and culture. It is all about you, everywhere, in the very atmosphere. While I," he laughed gratingly—"I have improved my mind and elevated my tastes by herding with a lot of ignorant Scandinavians. I've hardly spoken to another person."

"But you've been successful, Malcolm," with gentle sympathy.

"In what?" shortly.

"Oh, I know what he said. I know his acceptance of the word success. I've made money. I'm the richest young man in the county. My farm is a model. It is conceded that I can get more work and better results from my men and with less dissatisfaction than any other man in the state of Kansas. But what am I? A boss, the leader of a gang of fifty Scandinavian farm laborers. Except for the few paltry dollars I have made I might as well be one of them. I'd be just as fitting a mate for you. When I listened to your valetudinary I heard the tolling of the knell of all my hopes. Any one of my men would have understood as much of what you were saying as I did."

"Malcolm Bell, how utterly absurd and untrue!"

He hurried passionately on, as if she had not spoken.

"I can make money. That is a quality your father can understand and appreciate. He might be willing perhaps to allow the engagement to stand, but your mother—she is looking for you now," he added, hastily drawing the girl farther back into the shadow of the group of elms.

Winifred looked across the brilliant campus. Her mother was coming, and in her heart Winifred knew that Malcolm's unuttered words were true. In the eyes of the ambitious matron this young man's standing was very far from the heights for which she had destined her beautiful daughter. She had forgotten the day twenty-five years ago when she had given her hand to the young carpenter whose yearly earnings then would scarcely have sufficed to purchase one of the rings she wore now upon her plump white fingers.

"Let us walk in the other direction," said the girl calmly. "I do not care to go with mamma just now—and I think," she added naively, "mamma will enjoy herself better if she doesn't find me."

"You're good to stay with me at all, Winifred," said the young fellow brokenly, "and I'm a brute to intimate anything savoring of a lack of respect for your parents, but your mother told me this morning that she meant to take you abroad next year; that there was no need of a girl with your beauty and brains marrying a 'mere American,' especially since your Uncle Joshua's death had made your father a millionaire."

"Poor Uncle Joshua!" sighed the girl tenderly.

"Buying a title with your beauty and your father's money?" hotly. "It made me terribly angry, Winifred. I know how unworthy I am, and I am going to give you up. But to think of your being snatched away!"

The girl laughed a low, sweet laugh of infectious merriment.

"Malcolm, you are too funny! It is just as you were when we were children. You are willing to give away your cookie, but you won't have some one come up and grab it."

"I suppose I don't say things right, Winifred. I haven't a college education, you know"—the hurt showing in face and voice. "I'm not willing to give you up, but I'm going to—for your own happiness. You will meet many other men far more worthy of you than a rough farmer like me. But, oh, Winifred, there'll never be any one who can love you more than I do! Winifred, Winifred!"

He made no attempt to touch her. On the contrary, he drew farther away, as if to emphasize the gulf he felt must lie between them.

For a few minutes neither spoke; then the girl said gently and with seeming irrelevance, "Malcolm, do you recall Whittier's idyl of 'Bearcamp Water'? You recited it once in school."

"I have forgotten. What was it like, Winifred?" She evidently wants to leave an unwelcome subject as soon as possible, he thought, cut to the quick by her seeming indifference.

"One stanza has a particular bearing on the present situation," she said slowly after a pause.

His heart thrilled at her voice, but his treacherous memory gave him no clew to her meaning.

"Could you repeat the stanza, Winifred?"

Her face paled, then flushed painfully, but she looked bravely up into the somber face and repeated with quivering lips:

"Nor frock nor tan can hide the man,
And see you not, my farmer,
How weak and fond a woman waits
Behind the silken armor?"

Back from his schoolboy days came the next line, and he caught her in his arms with a low cry of happiness.

"Is the next true, Winifred? Can you say that, too?" he whispered.

"It has always been true," she answered softly. "The years have made no change in my heart, and I love you."

Ideals and Home Life.

A point was well made by Mr. Edward Howard Griggs at the conclusion of a lecture on "How to Attain Our Ideals." He had paused for questions from the audience, and one man said something to this effect: "Yes, these are very fine things you have been saying to us. Those of us who can see at all what you mean are eager to bring it into realization. But we are often terribly hampered. What can you say—what hope have you to offer—to a woman who, herself capable of holding these ideals, is tied to a man who is utterly incapable of any higher conception than that of bodily comfort?"

"You have touched," said Mr. Griggs, "upon a tragedy so profound that I have no words in which to answer you." A silence fell upon the great audience. Presently he broke it: "But this I can suggest, that very often those who most quickly and intensely grasp ideals are unwilling to take the necessary steps to realize them. There are orderly means to the attainment of every ideal. It is never reached at a bound. Only by patiently establishing each step before it goes on to the next can the human spirit reach its goal."

Marion Foster Washburne in Harper's Bazar.

Old English Gardening.

It is a little curious to think that even as far back as the middle ages a great quantity of "garden stuff" was imported into England from the continent. Although our ancestors were famous in those days for their salads and greens, they knew nothing about the cultivation of edible roots until the reign of Henry VIII. Up to then such things as carrots, turnips and artichokes were sent from Flanders, and special messengers were sometimes dispatched to bring back supplies for the royal table. Among the green vegetables most popular in Tudor days was "Good King Henry" or "Mercury Goosefoot." Those who would like to have a really old fashioned vegetable in their gardens are advised to try "Good King Henry." Nothing could be easier to grow, and as it is a perennial plant there is little or no trouble connected with it after it has once been put in the ground. The young leaves are used in the same way as spinach, making an acceptable, mild flavored dish, and the young shoots are cut under the ground and served up like asparagus.—London Chronicle.

Tricked the Stamp Fiend.

Stamp collectors are delighted when they secure a specimen which was issued before some mistake in printing was detected. During the Buffalo exposition the government issued a stamp to commemorate the occasion which depicted the Empire express train. A practical joker cut out the central part of one of the stamps which contained the train and carefully replaced it so that the train was in an upside down position. This he pasted on an envelope and mailed it to a friend who was a rabid collector.

The practiced eye of the stamp fiend at once discovered the misplaced position of the train, but did not notice the deception, and the collector was almost wild with joy until he offered it for sale, when he was informed that it was not a "rare" but a "cut out" stamp he preserved.—New York Press.

The Horn Dance.

Among the quaint old customs and ceremonies still kept alive in English country districts there is only one "horn dance," and that is to be found at Abbots Bromley, in Staffordshire. Every year at the village wake the dance is still carried out. The origin of the horn dance is lost in the mists of history, but it has been traced back as far as the eleventh century. Until the seventeenth century it was practiced at Christmas, on New Year's day and on Twelfth day. In the time of Henry VIII the dance was performed in front of the church every Sunday and a collection for the poor taken up from the spectators.

What Constitutes an Assault.

"If a man comes into your house," said the Liverpool stipendiary magistrate, "and picks up a poker to strike you, you are entitled to pick up the tongs and fence with him, and if you hit him with the tongs he cannot complain of being assaulted, because he would have struck you first if he could. But if, on the other hand, you take the poker out of his hand and strike him with it you are guilty of an assault, because you struck an unarmed man. That is as clear a distinction as I can make."

"Republican national committee in my plans has been no change in my plans," he said. "I shall retire from the chair when I cannot stay just when, before a great while."

One of the most difficult problems with which the builders of the Panama canal have to contend is the labor question. It is estimated that from 10,000 to 15,000 laborers will be required, and most of these will have to be imported. The use of negroes from the southern states has been discussed, but it is doubtful whether they will be available, and whether they would prove satisfactory. Most of the railroad building on the unhealthy coasts of Central America has been done by Jamaica negroes, and these, with a sprinkling of Chinese and Italians, will probably furnish the bulk of the laborers for canal work.—Dallas Lantern.

BRYAN ON IMMORTALITY.

In delivering an eulogy on the death of a friend, Hon. W. J. Bryan gave expression to the Immortality of the soul: "If the Father deigns to touch which divine power the cold and pulseless heart of the buried acorn and make it burst forth from its prison walls, will he neglect the soul of man who was made in his Creator's image? If he stoops to give to the rosebud whose withered blossoms float upon the autumn breeze, the sweet assurance of another springtime, will he withhold the word of hope from the souls of men when the frosts of winter come? If matter, mute and inanimate, is changed by the force of nature into a multitude of forms that can never die, will the spirit of man suffer annihilation after it has paid a brief visit like a royal guest to this tenement of clay? Rather let us believe that he who in his apparent prodigality wastes not the mortal has gathered to himself the generous spirit of our friend."—Athens Review.

HORACE GREELEY.

The Gentle, Brusque and Welcome Farmhouse Intruder.

"When Horace Greeley was first married and brought his bride home on a visit," said an old acquaintance, "a sugar party was given in their honor on a neighboring farm. All the guests had arrived, and we were looking out watching for the belated bride and groom. At last we saw something appearing in the distance. As this same object came nearer we discovered it was the old white horse of the Greeleys slowly picking his way through the mud. On his back sat the bride in a brilliant yellow frock, with a green velvet belt, and behind her, wrapped in his famous white overcoat, sat the editor of the New York Tribune. It was the funniest sight I ever saw and set us off in fits of laughing. I remember that I simply lay down and rolled upon the floor in a spasm of mirth.

"Mr. Greeley came home every year and after a day or two on the farm would start out to walk miles and call on people. He was never known to knock at a farmhouse door. No matter whether he knew the inmates or not he would push open the door, walk right in, sit down by the fireplace and fall to discussing crops and other topics dear to the farmer's heart. Everybody was glad to welcome this gentle, brusque intruder."

AFRICAN SANDSTORMS.

The Conditions Which Bring About These Deadly Blasts.

The sandstorms of African deserts are caused by the great power of the sun's rays, the extreme dryness of the air and the small conducting power of the sand. The superficial layers of sand in the deserts of Africa and Arabia often become heated to 200 degrees F. to a depth of several inches. The air resting on this hot sand becomes also greatly heated, thus causing ascending currents. As a result air flows in from all sides, and, different currents meeting, cyclones are formed, which are swept onward by the wind prevailing at the time. Since the temperature of the air, originally high, is still further raised by the heated grains of sand with which it is loaded, it rapidly increases to a most intolerable degree. In the shade it has been known to reach 120 degrees. It is to the parching dryness of this wind, its glowing heat and its choking dust and not, as is sometimes supposed, to any poisonous qualities it possesses that its destructive effects on animal life are to be ascribed. The effects of sandstorms are most terrible, large caravans being frequently overwhelmed and destroyed by them. It was by their agency that the armies of Cambyses and Senacherib were annihilated.

Apples as "Nightcaps."

The apple is such a common fruit that very few persons are familiar with its remarkably efficacious medicinal properties. Every one ought to know that the very best thing he can do is to eat apples just before retiring for the night.—Family Doctor.
